

ROPE, hemp, hair &c spun out into a thick yarn, and then several strings of this yarn twisted together by means of a wheel. When made very small, it is called a cord; and when very thick, a cable.

ROPE-YARN, among sailors, is the yarn of any rope untwisted, but commonly made up of junk; its use is to make finnet, mats &c.