

BROCATELL, called by the French brocadet, an ordinary kind of stuff made of cotton, or coarse silk, in imitation of brocade; chiefly used for tapestry and other furniture. That manufactured at Venice is the most esteemed.