

DR. SVEN HEDIN DISGUISED AS A LADAKHI AND DRIVING SHEEP

"From February to April, 1908, I disguised myself as a Ladakhi, and blackened my face every night and morning. At critical moments—when Tibetans approached our caravan—I used to run after our drove of twenty-five sheep and goats, whistling and shouting to keep them together."

FOOD AND TRANSPORT: THE SHEEP AND GOATS OF THE CARAVAN
Dr. Sven Hedin employed sheep and goats for transport purposes, as well as ponies and yaks.
